

Data Walls

- What are they?
  - Data walls present information related to the topic in questions
  - Data walls are often divided in to 'sensible and meaningful' categories
  - Data walls present information:
    - In a positively disruptive way to identify possible areas of improvement
    - To prompt curiosity, discussion and questions
  - Data wall material:
    - Can be photographic, graphical, sketched or narrative
    - Must be easily and quickly understood
    - Must have a title and show the information source
    - Does NOT have to present research findings
    - Should ideally be presented on one page
  - Data walls are living boards that can be added to
